GREAT REPUBLICAN RALLY AT AALA

The banner meeting of the present campaign will be held tonight at Aala Park by the Republicans. Elaborate preparations have been made for the event, which will be of singular interest in more ways than one. This will be the first meeting in this city at which Delegate Kalaniana'ole will speak, the Cuban question being one of his subjects. Another most interesting feature will be the reply which W. O. Smith will make to the assertions made by E. B. McClanahan, the Democratic candidate for Delegate, on the matter of the annexation of Cuba. Smith, on account of his position as secretary of the Planters' Association and his intimate acquaintance with affairs at Washington, will be able to treat the question thoroughly, while his words will be backed by an authority, which McClanahan lacks.

Among the other speakers at this meeting will be Rev. Stephen L. Deha, the well known Hilo preacher and politician, whose influence with the Hawaiians extends throughout the group; John C. Lane, who is a power in the Fifth District; David Kanaha of legislative fame; E. K. Lili'okalani and R. W. Aylett, both ex-members of the House of Representatives; United States District Attorney R. W. Breckons and other prominent Republican candidates as well as others. Fred W. Beckley, at one time speaker of the House, may be among them. The presiding genius will be S. Jahn Wai-lun.

Music of well known excellence will be provided by the Kaai glee club and Mrs. Alapai.

The Republicans will also hold a meeting, though on a smaller scale, near the Moulit church.

The Home Rulers will have a general meeting at Emma Square tonight, at which Chas. K. Nottley, their candidate for Delegate, will be the main attraction. He will speak both in Hawaiian and English, and will tell about the political situation as he found it on Hawaii and Maui.

J. M. Poepeo will answer McClanahan's contention relative to the question of disfranchisement, and will also speak in the English language for the benefit of those who do not understand Hawaiian.

The Democrats will have no less than three meetings tonight, one at Niolapa in Nuuanu valley, another at the corner of School and Liliha streets, and a third at the Kumalae building in Kakaako.

STRAIGHT VOTING URGED BY KUHIO

Deplores Democratic Tactics of Mud-Flinging

Cheering Prince Kuhio and the other candidates on the ticket of which he is the head, about seven hundred enthusiastic voters crowded into the special train that left for Pearl City at 7 o'clock Saturday evening. There were six cars in the train, and every car was jammed to the last inch of space. It was an orderly crowd, though a noisy one. The enthusiasm of the voters for Kalaniana'ole and for the Republican party was too big and too genuine to be repressed, and they cheered as the train pulled out until the sound could be heard for blocks.

As each station on the road was reached, the size of the crowd increased. There seemed no room in the train for any more people, but some way they climbed on, standing on the steps, hanging to the rails, anything so they could get to the rally. Poulou added its quota to the gathering hordes; almost every voter from that place climbed aboard and accompanied the party.

At Pearl City they met other crowds. Pearl City people, voters from Waianae and from all along the line below—several hundred of them.

A clean campaign, conducted in a clean manner, without personalities and without mud flinging, was the plea of Prince Kalaniana'ole, when he addressed the multitude. That is the kind of a campaign he is making, and that is the kind of campaign he wished might be conducted by all candidates, no matter of what party. He regretted the tactics of the Democrats, who seem to think that their chances of success are dependent upon vilification and misrepresentation, upon personal attacks upon the candidates of the Republican party.

Kuhio was much exhausted from his efforts in the tour of Maui and Hawaii from which he had returned only Saturday morning, and his voice was in bad shape. But it was a rattling good address he made, an address that is of the vote-getting kind. As he ascended the platform, the crowd broke into loud cheering which lasted several minutes. Cupid began by apologizing for the condition of his voice, resolute, he said, upon the large number of addresses he had been making on Hawaii. He deplored the tactics of misrepresentation and mud flinging being indulged in by the Democrats. When, four years ago, he took the leadership of the Republican party, he said, he had spoken in favor of a clean campaign, conducted without personalities, and he had maintained that position ever since. But he was sorry to see that his opponents were not of that mind, and that they were making vicious personal attacks upon some of the

KUHIO NAILS A LIE

At a noon-hour meeting of the politicians at the corner of King and Bethel streets today Sam Kalua, the right-hand man of McClanahan, took the stand and stated that Kuhio, Hawaii's Delegate to Congress, introduced a bill in Congress making the Hawaiian language officially recognized for only ten years, after which it would not be allowed in our legislative and court work. He attacked Kuhio so vigorously that the crowd that gathered there turned almost Democratic in their expression. He was repeatedly cheered and went on attacking the Republican administration. Prince Kuhio, Stephen Deha of Hilo, and Admiral Beckley were there. At the close of Kalua's speech, Admiral Beckley introduced as the next speaker Delegate Kuhio, who on mounting the stand said that Kalua did not know what he was talking about. He told Kalua not to go around and tell lies to the people. He said what he did do at Washington was to see that the Hawaiian language should be recognized as the official language, so that those who did not understand English could avail themselves of the opportunity of using the mother tongue and introducing any bill that they might want to pass upon in the Legislature. He said while at Washington he consulted Senators Cullum and Foraker relative to the advisability of making the Hawaiian language official. They said that it could not be done, as it was already a law that the English language should be official in all legal proceedings. He told Kalua to look up the County Act, where it is more definitely written.

There was general excitement during Kuhio's speech, and he invited the crowd to come down to Aala Park tonight to hear more about it.

Stephen Deha of Hilo next took the stand and in supporting the views expressed by Kuhio said that Sam Kalua was unreliable in his political stand, as he was one of the supporters who came to Hawaii before the last election with Kuhio and now he had suddenly turned about and supported McClanahan, who had not been with the Hawaiians and who had not even eaten together with the Hawaiians at the same table. He said it was useless to send a man there who was not popular with the Congressmen of the United States. Admiral Beckley was there and rendered valuable services towards bringing the Hawaiians to light.

CHINESE VOTERS ARE AFTER PLEDGE

Want Revision Of Birth Certificate Law

The Chinese Republican Club is taking a lively interest in politics, and intend to have a little political meeting for their own special benefit at the United Chinese Society's clubhouse. Several Republican candidates have been asked to speak. They will be asked whether they will work to have the law, passed by the 1905 Legislature, relative to Hawaiian birth certificates amended. The Chinese control about 200 votes, their greatest wish being to have this law revised, and they say they intend to throw their votes where they will do the most good in this direction. At least they want the Republicans to pledge themselves to amend the law, before they vote their ticket.

"The new birth certificate law is a most unfair one, in that it places a heavy tax on Chinese and Japanese exclusively," said a prominent Chinese this morning. "As it is now we have to pay $7.50 for each certificate. Furthermore, the necessary documents are so complicated that as a rule a lawyer's fee of from $15 to $25 a case is involved. This, together with expenses for witnesses, etc., makes the price of a certificate amount to $30 or $40, which is a burden, especially to men who have five or six children. We want to have the fee reduced to $1 and to have the application forms made less complicated, so that it will not be necessary to employ legal advisers."

"Another thing we want is to have the Delegate make the Immigration Service accept the Hawaiian birth certificates. As it is now, they are not accepted as proof of American citizenship, and even if a Chinese holds one he must, when he goes to the Coast, go through as rigid an examination as if he did not have one. Either the Immigration Service should recognize the certificates, or the Territory should issue certificates in such a form that they would be recognized."

"We are going to ask the candidates if they will work for the revision of the law. If they will, we will vote for them; if they won't we won't."

KUHIO SHOWS UP HAWAII'S DEMOCRAT MACHINE

"The Democrats are talking about Republican machine politics, but if you want to see a real machine, go to West Hawaii; that is where you will see one," said Prince Kuhio today. "In Kona and Kau, where the Democratic Supervisors have control, a man can't even get a job on the roads without first having signed the Democratic roll. That is a machine with a difference. In East Hawaii, where the Republicans are in control, men are employed without such restrictions."

"McClanahan has made charges against me. I am glad he has, because I am able to meet them, and I shall do so. On the whole, all the Democrats have done on Hawaii is to pick up a few matters like the Cuban question, and to indulge in personalities. Even there the Democrats are afraid of supporting McClanahan. He tried to get some of the candidates of his party to accompany him, but they refused to do so, claiming that they would lose the Hawaiian vote in case they were with him. The Democrats who were with McClanahan only mentioned him as the head of the ticket. They were afraid of supporting him, and after the Democratic meetings of them even went around the Hawaiians and told them to vote for me. That is the kind of Democrats they are."

Kellogg's Dam Plans, Says Patterson, Are Not Being Followed

FINDS FATAL FLAWS IN PIPE

"If people knew the way the work is going on on the Nuuanu dam, they would not sleep nights," said Patterson of dam fame this morning. "The government is not following out the recommendations made by Kellogg. They are trying to patch up old work with new work. For instance, they cut out the gate house, as Kellogg recommended, but they have left the old gate house foundation there. Now the old construction has settled down in its bed, and when the new construction is added to it, that will also settle in time, and a break is bound to occur when the two pieces of work join."

Patterson made a trip up to the dam yesterday, together with Jos. I. Whittle, a painter, and the two found what they claim to be several fatal flaws in the work which is being done. Whittle made a sketch illustrating these plans, which will appear in the Bulletin later. "I am naturally interested in the way the dam is being built," said Whittle, "as I live right below it, and would be drowned out if the dam should break. If things continue to go on as they are now, I want to get out and get out of there."

"We discovered a crack in the main supply pipe, just a little back of the center of the dam, in the corowall," said Patterson. "Here we found that they had undermined the supply pipe, which as a consequence was breaking from its own weight. Evidently the idea of this undermining was to get at the lower pipe, the washout pipe, to reinforce it. The supply pipe for over thirty feet will have to be undermined to allow him to put the concrete around the washout pipe, then to re-inforce the upper pipe, after which they will fill in some forty feet of earth on top of both pipes, which are only supported by loose earth on the bottom. This would break the pipe at both ends where the solid ground begins, letting the entire volume of water loose in the center of the dam."

"It looks to me as though we ought to have some protection against such a haphazard way of working. Some one of experience certainly should be put in charge."

"In the picture you will notice some drip holes along the lower pipe. These holes are cement, which has been poured from the inside of the pipe, but has washed through the concrete and washed down on the outside. This will show the public how tight their concrete pipe was in the first place. If concrete would run through the pipe, what would the water have done? The picture also shows the crack, where the supply pipe has been broken by its own weight."

"They seem to have a mania for undermining solid concrete. At the seawall, which has been built at the Alakea slip, and accepted by the government, they have blasted out the foundation of the wall on one side in their dredging operations. Afterwards they had to add three feet to its thickness on the land side, to balance the wall, and keep it from falling into the sea."

BIG PACKET ALGOA LARGEST OUT OF SAN FRANCISCO COMES FROM COAST

The steamship Algoa, of the Pacific Mail line, the largest freight packet running out of San Francisco, arrived from that port this morning and docked at the Oceanic wharf shortly before 9 o'clock. She made the voyage to Honolulu in eight days and twenty hours, rather slow time, but being a freighter only, time is not so essential.

The Algoa is taking aboard here the Manchuria's cargo, amounting to about 2000 tons. She has a cargo of 10,000
